

Riparian Plants – Investments To Building A Healthy Lake and Watershed

Riparian plants grow along the shorelines of lakes. These plants act as a filter to trap and break down nutrients from entering the water. Many of these riparian plants have deep binding root mass which helps protect against shoreline erosion.

Protect and manage these plants today!

Vincent Lake Working Group 2000